This musical score is for the piece 'Foothill in May' from the collection 'Songs of Serendipity' by Kevin McCarter. It is written in 4/4 time and marked 'Calmly active' with a tempo of approximately 63 beats per minute. The score is divided into two systems. The first system includes parts for Mezzo-soprano, Clarinet (concert pitch), Cello, and Piano. The Mezzo-soprano part is mostly silent. The Clarinet part features a melodic line with triplets and a piano (p) dynamic. The Cello part provides harmonic support with chords and moving lines, also marked p. The Piano part consists of two staves with a complex accompaniment of chords and arpeggios, marked p. The second system continues the instrumental parts, with the Mezzo-soprano part remaining silent. The Clarinet part continues with more melodic development and triplets. The Cello and Piano parts continue their respective parts, with the Piano part showing more intricate chordal textures.

Songs of Serendipity

Poems (by Kevin McCarter)

Foothill in May

Alone
among countless smooth boulders and tall barked trunks, listening as a creek slides in unmeasured rhythm down a soft cliff, then looking up as wings flutter, pausing on a bright branch beneath a boundary newly green at the opening of undimensional blueness.

Commuter Station

These rails, which connect the horizon of from with the far-off to, rest on wood on crushed rock beside asphalt and benches and people who stand or sit and wait to go.

A fence, mirror-like, mediates our side and its reflection—rails, rock, benches, people, with from and to reversed.

Unshaded, the air is hot and still.
Nothing moves between from and to as the time is passing.

Then, unannounced, comes a flicker of yellow, a delicate dart and flutter as butterfly wings cross the tracks.

Sunset Near Home

Low sun, rising moon, tall trees glowing,
a clean, pale sky behind.
As earth slowly turns the light down, leaves flap gently,
birds eat and sing.
The moon brightens, lingers in this space so sweetly charmed the common seems exceptional.
